Instructor

Patrick "Chip" Cassidy has been teaching wine classes for over 30 years and holds more than 40 years of experience working in the wine industry. He has garnered prestigious awards from both the business and academic communities. Born and raised in New York, Chip found his way to Florida where he graduated from FIU's Chaplin School of Hospitality and Tourism Management. From establishing the first wine club on campus to becoming a buyer for Southern Wine and Spirits, and returning as a professor, Chip has taught and mentored many. His travels around the world and love for wine have earned him the nickname "The Wine Guy" and have become the inspiration for his last two books: Wine Travels and Further Wine Travels.
